

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method, which generates data input to a device calculating the intensity of an electromagnetic field emitted from an electric circuit device, extracts surface data of a metal cabinet from the three-dimensional data of the electric circuit device, partitions the surface corresponding to the surface data into quadrilateral meshes, and outputs the data partitioned into meshes to the electromagnetic field intensity calculating device.

20250728 10:01:29